

ABSTRACT

A surgical end effector includes an anvil movable between a first position and a second position, the anvil having a concave anvil surface, and a convex mating surface. The anvil clamps a tissue structure between the anvil surface and the mating surface when in the second position, and wherein the mating surface has a different radius of curvature than the anvil surface.